METHODISTS OUT IN LARGE NUMBERS

LAST NIGHT'S SERVICES AT BIG TABERNACLE

Evangelist Smith Preaches on the Wiles of his Satanic Majesty—Says Nobody can Disarrange Things Like the Devil—Tells What he Thinks of Certain Methods Employed in Raising Money for Churches.

Although the Baptists made a fine showing at Tuesday night's revival services, in respect to numbers present the Methodists made equally as good a record last evening, being out in practically full force. They occupied the pews in the central section of the tent and when the hour for opening arrived nearly all the remaining seats were filled.

The song service opened with the singing of "If Jesus Goes With Me." Next the choir sang "Dwelling in Beulah Land" the chorus of which was later whistled first by the ladies and then by the men. A good Methodist brother requested that the hymn "Old Time Religion," be sung. He got it. The choir and audience responded promptly. Rev. L. N. Ferguson, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, offered prayer. Prof. Cole sang "Jesus is a Friend of Mine" Evangelist Smith read the scripture lesson after which the choir rendered the "Awakening Chorus," followed by "Rock of Ages," and then came the sermon.

Mr. Smith chose for his subject last night, "The Wiles of the Devil" or "The Sins of D". His text was Ephesians 6: 10, 11.

His sermon in part was as follows:

"If you want to fight the devil, the first intelligent and important thing to do is to find out what he is doing. No fool would fight without knowing something about his opponent. And yet, you Christians think you can combat the devil. You dare not say that you are able to withstand him He rarely ever attacks with a frontal attack—but always in the most insiduous manner.

"It is remarkable, but only a coincidence, how many wiles of the devil begin with the same letter as his name—D.

"The first one I call your attention to is Dethronement. The first thing God said was not study or think but choose. The devil knows that and he loves to come into your life and mine and topple our will from its throne, until we lose the power of choice. We see all around us people who have become slaves to some vice or habit, until they are no longer its master. I have seen some so-called christians, who were slaves to an evil temper. God can save me from my temper or He is not a God worth having.

"Another one is Disarrangement. This is one of the devil's master wiles Nobody can dissarrange things like the devil. God is a god of order Everything in nature is orderly. But the devil loves to disarrange; he is a master muddler. How often we see this in our churches, when we think more of the effect of our sermon than of God's truth; When we think more of the tones in our songs than the words we sing.

"I think we ought to have a stained-glass window in every church to the memory of the oyster and have a special creed and prayer written for St. Oyster. It may be St. chicken here in the South. The oyster and chicken have built more churches, put more new carpets on them, and paid more preacher's salaries than any other one thing I know of. It is disarrangement.

"Another master wile of the devil is Destruction. Anything that destroys body and mind is wrong. That is why I am heart and soul against strong drink. It nearly destroyed my life and my home. I am glad you are going to get rid of the cursed stuff in Alexandria on the first of November, and I hope you will put men in office that will enforce the law to the limit.

"There are many more that I might mention—Demoralization, Disloyalty and others, but I haven't time, I do want to mention Dirtiness. I mean impure thoughts and impure speech. I have heard men swear on the streets of Alexandria as if they had been to Hell for their education and had the devil for their teachers, they have the language of the pit so perfect.

Gypsy Smith, Jr. Epigrams

"I hope you Christian men will rebuke impure language by saying; 'My ear is not a sewer.'"

"Some men say they support the church. They buy a 25 cent ticket to a church supper and eat 50 cents worth."

"No gentleman swears. You may call yourself a gentleman, but when you swear, the sign automatically falls."

"You can always tell what kind of wheels a man has in his head, by the spokes that come out of his mouth."

"Christ said; 'Forgive your debtors,' The world says, 'sue them for their dough.'"

"In closing let me run up a few signals that may help you.

"If you want to be a strong, stalwart, healthy christian, beware of Surprises, or remember the great law of watchfulness. Beware of exhaustion or remember the great law of Replenishment. Beware of Inactivity or remember the great law of work Beware of uncertainty or remember the great law of Faith. Beware of inaccuracy, or remember the great law of Truth.

"If the devil has trapped you in one of his wiles, and you are a powerless, no-account christian, reconsecrate yourself at the beginning of these meetings and become a soul-winner and power for God."

Tonight is Presbyterian night. All Presbyterians are invited to special seats in center section.

STATE WINS IN TAX CASE

Judge Moffett Decides That Thomas H. Cooper Was Resident of Virginia.

Richmond, Sept. 7—Under a judgment entered yesterday by Judge W. W. Moffett, of the Circuit Court of Roanoke County, in the case of the Commonwealth against the administrator of the estate of Thomas H. Cooper, involving State taxes on intangible property valued at $300,000, a notable victory is credited to Christopher B. Garnett, executive assistant and legal adviser to the State Tax Board.

The case is one of the most interesting that has come up in years in connection with the enforcement of the State tax laws. It is typical also of a general class of cases in which heirs or executors seek to escape State or local taxation on intangible personal property on the ground that the testator was a resident of another State.

In the case in question, Judge Moffett sustains the contention of the counsel for the Tax Board that Cooper was a resident of Virginia within the meaning of the tax law, and that his intangible personal property is therefore taxable under the laws of Virginia. The court's decision will mean the saving to the Commonwealth of between $7,000 and $8,000 in taxes, besides the local levies made by the town of Salem, where Cooper died. The decision is valuable also as a contribution to the court literature on the troublesome question of domicile which arises frequently in the administration of the tax laws.

WILL ATTACK LABOR LAW

Hughes' Presidential Campaign Directors to Ask Voters to Repudiate Measure

New York, Sept. 7—Hughes' Presidential campaign directors will appeal to voters to repudiate the Adamson labor act, not as an eight-hour law, but as a raised wage law.

After a conference yesterday between chairman Willcox, Senators Weeks, Warren and Oliver of Pennsylvania and National Committeemen Parsons, the plans of the attack on the railroad legislation were outlined Senator Weeks said:

"We are going to make a big issue of this misnamed eight-hour law. We call it the raised-wage law. We shall ask the voters to say whether they approve of a group of men headed by the President forcing Congress to enact a law suddenly framed with but a few days' consideration and without the slightest investigation as to whether it is desirable.

"Not in twelve years of public life have I received so many protests against any one measure. I have fully a thousand messages. Those in favor of the Adamson act all came from labor unions in practically the same language as if they had been written by Samuel Gompers himself. Those in opposition came from business men and employes who are to derive no benefit from the law."

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES STRIKE

Fifteen Thousand Walk Out in New York City.

New York, Sept. 7—A car strike intended to tie up every surface, subway, and elevated line in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx was declared last night.

About 15,000 men will be affected.

The companies involved are the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York Railways Company.

Employes of the Interborough, which operates the subway and elevated lines, voted to strike, at a mass meeting at Lyceum Hall, at 9:20 p. m. Scouts immediately were sent out to notify the crews on the lines that a strike had been called.

The men voted to strike because officers of the company have recently signed some 9,000 employes to individual contracts. These contracts do not recognize the union and prevent the men from participating in any movement for the betterment of their working conditions or for an increase of wages for a period of two years.

Union officials demand the recognition of the union.

Following the action of the Interborough employes in voting to strike, employes of the New York Railways Company met at Plaza Hall and voted to go out with the Interborough men.

The same set of officers head both the Interborough and the New York Railways Company, which runs what are known as the "green cars."

Immediately word of the strike reached police headquarters, strike orders were issued to every precinct in the city. They called for the 5,000 strike reserves to be in instant readiness.

Every subway and elevated train was ordered policed with three uniformed patrolmen.

Every car barn in the city is filled with strikebreakers, 5,000 of which were gathered by the Interborough during the last week in preparation for the strike.

The strike affects more than 4,000,000 people living in Manhattan and the Bronx.

E. P. Ripley, president of the Aitchison, Topeka and Santa Fe does not intend to comply with the Adamson eight hour law, recently enacted by Congress to avert a threatened strike, until ordered so to do by the United States Supreme Court. President Ripley declared that the so-called eight-hour law was nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in wages to the men who receive the most money in the railway service.

Oyster season opens at the Rammel Cafe, tomorrow Sept. 1st.

MRS. BARNES KILLED HUSBAND

Shot Him to Death In Park Because He Would Not Live With Her

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 7—Mrs. James R. Barnes, whose husband was found dead with three bullets in his body in Washington park Tuesday night, has confessed to killing him according to the police, "because he refused to live with her any more." Barnes was the Chicago agent of a New York soap concern. Barnes was found dead by a park policeman. Mrs. Barnes was standing over the body wringing her hands and crying, "He shot himself; he shot himself." Mrs. Barnes told the police that her husband had killed himself after he threatened to kill her. She said he was suing her for divorce, and that they had quarreled when she asked him not to press the suit, "I wanted to make up, but he wouldn't do it," she said.

Mrs. Barnes declared her husband sued because he found her with a man in their apartment. She told the police that the man had caught her parrot and asked to come in and wash his hands. "She told him he could," said Policeman McNamara, "and he went back to the kitchen sink, As he was bending over, according to her account, he turned suddenly, grabbed her and carried her into the next room. Just then her husband came home and found the two in the house. That was the beginning of their trouble, though I guess he had been jealous before." Mrs. Barnes admitted, the police say, that the revolver under Barnes, was hers. She bought it to protect herself from burglars, and that her husband probably had picked it up when he came to her flat Tuesday night. Police declare Barnes could not have killed himself. Mrs. Barnes is held pending investigation.

NO FEAR OF 8-HOUR ISSUE

Democrats Ready to Meet Hughes if He Forces Question

BUSINESS WAS SAVED

Leaders Assert Country Would Have Lost $60,000,000 Daily if Strike Had Been Called.

Washington, Sept. 7—Democratic leaders in Congress declared yesterday that they were ready to meet Charles E. Hughes and his campaign managers if they desired to make the eight-hour day legislation the overshadowing issue in the Presidential campaign. The Democrats added that they were not afraid to face the issue and did not anticipate any unfavorable verdict of the American people on this question when once it was clearly explained to them.

The eight-hour day legislation, it is explained, was pushed so hastily through Congress primarily to avert a strike of 400,000 trainmen on the railroads, which would not only have brought to a standstill America's transportation system but would have brought paralysis to the whole of American industrial life. Such a strike, it is contended, would have cost the American people $1,000,000,000, and it was to avert these losses that the legislation was passed. As to the principle of the eight-hour day, the Democrats do not believe Republicans will dare to attack it, as it is now an accepted social condition in all leading American industries.

Representative Carter Glass, of Virginia, co-author of the Federal reserve banking system, has received a number of letters, some of which criticized the legislation. In answer to these, Mr. Glass told his correspondents that they did not appreciate what enormous losses to American business were averted by stopping the strike.

The loss by railroads alone, said Mr. Glass in a letter to a business friend, would have been $8,000,000 a day, which in a week would have totaled the amount of the wage increase the eight hour day would entail upon the railroads for an entire year. These figures, the Virginian said, are the railroads. In two months time, added Mr. Glass, and it was likely that the strike, once called, would have lasted that long, would have cost the carriers a sum equal to the aggregate of the wage increase for 10 years.

But the railroads, Mr. Glass went on to say, would not have been the only sufferers. American business generally would have been paralyzed Factories, he said, would have been compelled to close down because they could not move their products to the markets; stores would have been compelled to curtail their business, because they could not get wares, and all lines of business generally would have been given a tremendous set-back. These losses, Mr. Glass said, would have mounted into the millions, far greater than the losses by the railroads.

Representative T. W. Sims, of Tennessee, a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Commitee, in discussing this question with his colleagues in the commitee, differed with some of those who contended that the eight-hour day would cost the railroads $60,000,000 a year.

"You forget," said Judge Sims, "that a strike on the railroads, tying up all transportation facilities, would mean a loss of $60,000,000 a day to the American business man. The railroads' additional expenses of $60,000,000 a year, if it cost them that sum, is not a drop in the bucket. What we have to do is to avert a strike which will bring such widespread disaster to American business, much less the widespread suffering it will cause thousands of people who cannot get food supplies. The question, therefore, is whether we shall let the American people lost $60,000,000 a day or increase the expenses of the railroad $60,000,000 a year. There is only one answer, and that is to avert the strike, and the only way in sight is to pass the eight-hour day legislation."

There is considerable doubt among economists that the wage increase brought on by the eight hour day will entail an additional expense of $60,000,000 a year upon the railroads. The trainmen say the additional expense will be only $20,000,000 a year. It is declared that practically all the passenger trainmen do not work more than eight hours now, and the law will help only the freight trainmen. These, it is said, number only 150,000 of the 400,000.

IRE ROUSED IN THE SENATE

Debate on Corrupt Practices Precipitates Thrilling Scene

TAKE LID OFF SECRETS

Charges Concerning Huge Election Bandied About—Owen To Press Bill

Washington, Sept. 7.—While the Senate was waiting yesterday on the Revenue bill conferees the Owen Corrupt Practices bill was taken up and made the vehicle for several hours of acrimonious political debate. Democratic and Republican Senators indulged in personal exchanges and regaled their fellow Senators with accounts of campaign contributions and the rewards given some contributors in the past.

The vote to take up the bill was 32 to 14, nine Republicans voting with the majority to consider the measure and seven Democrats voting against it, Senator Owen, its author, last night canceled a speaking engagement today before the Ohio Democratic Convention to remain here to fight for its adoption.

Senator Curtis, of Kansas, Republican and Ashurst, of Arizona, Democrat furnished the excitement of the day's debate in an interchange which looked for a few minutes as if it might result in a personal encounter.

The bill would restrict campaign expenditures of candidates for the Senate, the House and for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency to a greater extent than existing laws. Senator Curtis argued that such a measure, passed when a campaign is half over, might work unfairly against men who have already spent the stipulated amount. He advocated a more stringent law than that proposed, and one that would particularly restrict the use of the Congressional frank to prevent Senators or Representatives from sending out campaign appeals at Government expense. He read a letter from Senator Ashurst to a constituent reciting his record as a basis for support, and said he understood that 70,000 of these had been franked out, in violation of the privilege.

"If the Senator charges that this is a violation of the law," said Senator Ashurst, when he got the floor, "he has sweetbreads for brains."

He explained that his letter had been submitted and approved by the Postmaster-General and one of his assistants as being matter which could be franked, and told how former President Taft, when in the Philippines, and the then Secretary of War Root exchanged cablegrams at 52 cents a word, paid by the Government, to discuss Mr. Taft's health and a horseback ride.

Calling Senator Curtis the "Pharisee from Kansas" and brushing aside several chairs, he strode across the centre aisle and shook his finger under Senator Curtis' nose, Senator Smoot, seated just between the two, moved back in mock alarm as Senator Ashurst approached. Senator Curtis smiled but kept his seat.

A littler later Mr. Ashurst turned on Senator Penrose, wo said he had noticed a "copper lobby" around the Capitol, whose members had been talking with the Arizona Senator.

"If," said Mr. Ashurst, "the Senator means to say that my vote has been influenced by a copper lobby or any other lobby, he lies."

Several Senators objected to this language, and Senator Ashurst, af-

CLUB HOUSES FOR BOYS

Alexandria and Other Virginia Soldiers Enjoy Many Comforts On Border.

In twenty military camps along the border, extending from Brownsville on the Gulf to San Diego on the Pacific, thirty-eight big Army Y. M. C. A. buildings rear themselves above the cities of white tents. They are the coolest places in the camps—screened from flies; dry in the heavy rains; well lighted at night; comfortable and home-like. The buildings are centers which the men appreciate so greatly that their facilities are used to the utmost during leisure from camp work and drill and throughout the evening hours until the bugles sound taps.

All day long the graphophone whirls out music. In the evening groups of soldiers put on the records of popular songs and their voices ring out into the Texas night in rollicking choruses. And they like to sing hymns too. If there is no record for what they want, some fellow who can play sits at the little folding organ and leads in the grand old hymns of the church or the faster measures of one of the Billy Sunday collection. Some of the more opulent branch Associations have a piano, rented by the month, and this is rarely silent.

From the opening day of each building, writing paper by the thousand sheets has been given out at the secretaries' counter and letters by the bushel are daily sent homeward. In every building is the sign — "Write Home," a reminder to many thoughtless and careless young men. Up to the end of August the consumption of writing paper averaged about 75,000 sheets a day.

Forty tons of magazines and other reading matter were sent to the Association buildings on the border between July 1st and September 1st, and there were many individual shipments from soldiers' relatives and friends. When the soldiers are not writing letters or listening to the graphophone, they are reading. Dominoes and checker tournaments are going all the time with full entries. If the quoits are all in use any Y. M. C. A. secretary can produce horseshoes as a good substitute.

At night there are the "movies" and impromptu entertainments, with talent furnished by the men themselves. There is a surprising amount of good talent among the troops and while the programs are not always up to the highest vaudeville standard they furnish a lot of amusement and good wholesome fun for the men. Only those who come early are able to get into the buildings at all.

When all the motion picture equipments are installed, thirty buildings can be turned into "movie" theatres every night if necessary. The motion picture film trade has generously agreed to provide free film service for the Y. M. C. A. buildings, the reels being sent on a regular circuit from one camp to another. The motion picture machines are so arranged that on fine nights the screens can be set up in the open air and unlimited audiences accommodated.

Free to every man like everything else, is a never-failing barrel of ice water. The Red Cross of certain states is furnishing special tanks with bubbling fountains and a daily supply of ice for buildings used by the troops of their states.

NEGRO ATTACKS WOMAN

Brute Intercepts Intended Victim on Henry Street, Near King

While hundreds of persons were wending their way down King street Tuesday night, most of whom had been attending the Gypsy Smith revival services, a bold attempt to commit crime was made by a young negro on the west side of Henry street, between King and Prince. A middle-aged white lady who resides in the extreme southwestern section of the city, upon reaching Henry street turned south. She was alone, and by reason of physical weakness was walking slowly and with difficulty, when she was overtaken by a negro boy, wearing knee pants, who asked her if she needed help. The woman told the boy she could take care of herself, and was continuing her way homeward when the negro took hold of her and threw her to the ground. The spot selected by the assailant is where a long fence runs south to an alley. The west side of the street is dark, as this fence casts its shadow as far as the curb stones. The woman, upon realizing the negro's purpose, cried out for help, and as throngs of people were still passing down King street, only half a square north, the negro became alarmed and fled.

The attempted assault was reported to the police and every effort is being made to capture the fiend. The lady who was subjected to the terrible experience cannot positively identify the rascal. She says he is young and was wearing knee pants.

WANT SLEMP'S SCALP

Democrats Reaching For Standpat Republican— Prosperity Best Card

(Richmond Journal).

Congressman Slemp, the lone Republican from Virginia, will have all sorts of entertainment before the campaign is over. Mr. Slemp has been in congress for years and has made a record. That record will be turned on him and he will be called on to explain. Several days ago Senator Lee Trinkle, the Democratic candidate, invited Mr. Slemp, to arrange to open his campaign at an early date and proposed a series of joint debates at all points in the district. On the railroad matter in the house of representatives Congressman Slemp voted for the eight-hour bill for the operation of railroads of the country, being with the Democrats in that measure.

Governor Stuart, Judge Rhea, Colonel Wysor, Tate Irvin and scores of other Democrats with reputations as speakers, all popular with the people, will make pilgrimage to the Ninth district within the next sixty days and will spend much time in the effort to elect Senator Trinkle to congress. The district committee has perfected its plan of campaign and Chairman James will go out and have a look at the field and the batteries of democracy will be turned into that section, the attack being kept up incessantly. This time the Democrats are in better shape than ever—prosperity, the slogan of the erstwhile successful Republicans—having disproved the boast that it would never prevail save by the consent of the "Standpatters."

Reports that come to Richmand from the Ninth district are of the most encouraging character. Senator Trinkle is in the fighting and is leading with all the force at his command. The situation, so far as the Republicans are concerned, is interesting in that Colonel W. C. Pendleton, one of the recognized chieftains of the party in that section, has declared war on "Alvah Martin and his bunch." Mr. Martin is the man who represents the state in the national councils of the Republican party. The candidate of the Republicans is the chairman of the state committee and has to "stand in" with the man who is so repugnant to Colonel Pendleton and his followers. Then there are considerable numbers of the Bull Moose squadron in the Ninth district, some of whom do not relish the idea of being whipped into the ranks of the "Standpatters" after their leaders had made unconditional surrender.

"ALEXANDRIA FOR CHRIST".

The Gazette congratulates the citizens of Alexandria upon the splendid endorsement they have given to the religious campaign now in progress here by their attendance at the three services thus far held. Magnificent audiences have greeted the evangelist each evening, a large number of singers are contributing their time and talent in making up the fine choir, the various committees have given an excellent account of themselves and the harmonious, united action on the part of the churches is most gratifying, all of which is certainly a credit to the city.

We are proud of Alexandria and Alexandrians!

According to Eusebius, Constantine upon his death bed told of a remarkable sign he alleged he saw in the heavens. It was a flaming cross at noonday. His motto after that was in hoc signo vinces (in this sign conquer). In the tent on upper King street is a banner bearing the words used in the headline of this article, which let us hope will prove to be our motto.

We often hear the skeptic laugh at the dream, as he calls it, of converting a city to Christianity. With men such a thing may appear impossible, but let us remember the words used to the father of the Hebrew nation thousands of years ago, and repeated by the angel Gabriel at the inception of the gospel dispensation— "With God all things are possible."

Like all cities, Alexandria contains a miscellaneous population. Protestants, Catholics, Jews, Chinamen, Russians, Italians, Germans, Frenchmen, Englishmen, Scotchmen, in short, representatives of all nations are in our midst—all tax-payers, and all entitled to the privileges of citizenship. While polyglot in a measure, they are all offsprings of the Creator, who, we are told, made man in his own image. With so many classes, speaking different languages, with different beliefs, manners and customs, it naturally seems quite improbable to suppose they can be gathered into one fold and under one shepherd.

To use a word often employed by Gypsy Smith, the evangelist, now conducting the revival in this city, "Listen!" Is it not reasonable to suppose that Nineveh contained a miscellaneous population in the days of the Prophet Jonah? Listen! Jonah was a tramp preacher so-called and he appeared in Nineveh minus credentials from any council, general assembly or conference. He had, however, been sent by one higher than any mundane ecclesiastical body. His message was short—"Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be destroyed." We read that the king laid aside his royal robes, went into sackcloth and ashes, as did all the Ninevites, great and small. Their prayers were heard and the great city was not destroyed.

In one of the Psalms the writer urges that Jehovah had delivered others; hence he could do it for him and there is an old saying to the effect that what has been done before may be done again. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever.

What a desideratum if old Alexandria should embrace the Gospel—each and every one within our gates. Moral Commissioner Peters, with his lynx eyes could then pass us by in his search for red light districts, speak easies, gambling dens, etc.

The meetings referred to above are the largest religious gatherings of Alexandrians ever witnessed. Our Chamber of Commerce is doing everything possible to induce manufacturers to locate here, and we all want to hear the whir of spindles and other evidences of a busy city. We may be destined to continue along the sequestered paths of life without realizing our dreams of an expanded commerce, but should the heavens be opened and showers of blessings be poured out until there should not be room enough to contain them, a treasure far greater would be ours.

Therefore, it behooves all to vie in this great work. Who can tell what the harvest may be?

A CAMPAIGN OF SHADOWS.

Frank A. Munsey, delivers in the New York Sun, an editorial broadside of terrific wind-force. The Baltimore Sun in commenting upon this production says that Democrats who have had the courage to read it must have been appalled by its deafening sound and devastating flood of lurid words and ideas. It is impossible to pay proper tribute to it by any mere general description. Suffice it to say that with the power of artistic genius he was summoned to Shadow Lawn, where that gross Pretender, Woodrow Wilson, was delivering his speech of acceptance and trying to hoodwink the American people, the "angry shadows of broken promises to confound the arch-political villain in the moment of his triumph and to convert into disaster and mourning a sweet hour of jubilation.

Not content with convicting the offender of all the high crime and misdemeanors known to the code of Republican purity, the last shadow presumably Mr. Justice Hughes, pronounces the following sentence upon poor Woodrow in the presence of his friends assembled at Shadow Lawn "If my supernatural vision does not deceive me, public opinion in America is already preparing the gallow platform upon which another sort of notification speech will be delivered to you, Mr. Woodrow Wilson." In the circumstances, no wonder that Mr. Munsey notes that "the notification ceremony was not much of a success;" that it broke up in confusion and that the guilty man fled to his political castle in Washington pursued by the avenging spirits that the genius of Mr. Munsey had let loose on him. The press agencies and all other newspapers, in a spirit of false compassion, endeavored to suppress the exposure and humiliation of Woodrow, but Munsey refused to join in this conspiracy against the country and, with a ruthless sense of justice and truth, draws the curtain from this lawn of shadows and permits us to see what actually took place there.

CANDIDATE HUGHES.

Not since 1872, when the late Horace Greeley made his swing around the circle, has a candidate for the Presidency laid himself more open than has Charles E. Hughes. Greeley was probably the worst lampooned man who ever aspired to be chief executive of the United States. Nast, an English cartoonist, was brought from England by Harper Brothers during that memorable campaign. He was directed to turn all his guns upon the great editor, who was one of those who rocked the republican party while it was in its swaddling clothes, but who had allowed himself to be "picked up" by the democrats at a time when virtually all the southern states were out of the union.

The Philadelphia Record points out many weak places in the republican candidate of our day. It says:

Hindsight Hughes, upon whom no responsibility rested for the protection of the country's interests when paralysis of business and transportation was threatened by a railway strike, knows exactly what should have been done to avert the calamity. Of course, it is not what President Wilson and Congress did. Listen to his words of wisdom:

"I will say this further, that I believe there is no grievance with respect to labor that cannot be settled by a fair, candid examination of the facts."

It is difficult to have patience with the application of such a weak and watery platitude to the situation that existed last week. We all know that there is no grievance with respect to anything that cannot be settled by a "fair, candid examination of the facts." Hindsight Hughes' prescription would have averted the European war. It would settle disputes which lead to assault and battery. It would put an end to lawsuits. But how are you going to prevent a war, or a fist fight, or a lawsuit, or a railroad strike, when the more powerful of two adversaries refuses to await a "fair candid examination of the facts?"

Last week the people of the United States were in the position of a man sitting upon a barrel of gunpowder with a lighted fuse attached. The lighted fuse was the strike order. The thing to do was to put it out. Would the 100 per cent. candidate, had he been President, have allowed it to burn pending a "fair and candid examination of the facts" as to how it came to be lighted?

If Hindsight Hughes thinks that the President should have done nothing to avert the strike, he should come right out and say so. It is silly for him to talk about the virtue of a "fair and candid examination of the facts," as if that remedy had never been thought of. Doesn't he read the newspapers? Doesn't he know that the Brotherhoods had flatly and finally rejected arbitration? Does he know of any means by which it could have been forced upon them?

SCORED CHURCH METHODS

Mrs. Bessie Larkin spoke to an overflowing crowd at the tent evangelical meetings in Richmond one night this week. Among other things she said:

Church work is something more than holding bazaars, feasts and fairs. Bargain-counter, lunch-room religion is not the right brand. There's no excuse in making Christ a pauper. If the Christian people would properly support the church and its institutions there could never be any occasion for resorting to such things to defray church expenses. The reason so many people in the orthodox churches are running after the new 'issues'—Russellism, Christian Science and such things—is because they have never been truly converted and their experience in the church being disappointing, they are reaching out for every new thing in hope of finding something that will satisfy the hunger of their hearts.

Gypsy Smith in his address last night at the gospel tent in this city spoke on similar lines. He, too, deplored the modern church methods of raising money, and threw bombs at those who resort to oyster suppers strawberry festivals, rummage sales, etc.

During the prophetic conference in Chicago in 1886 one of the speakers made a violent attack on schemes savoring of worldliness by which money is raised for religious purposes. He termed it the "cooking stove apostacy."

THE PENALTY IS DEATH

(Richmond Journal)

In the enlightenment of this age, when reformers would have us abolish the death penalty absolutely, we have a new form of inflicting the penalty which should receive the very earnest attention of our people.

A child playing, thoughtlessly runs across the street. The penalty is death. An aged person, probably with defective hearing, is slow in his movements in crossing some thoroughfare. The penalty is death. Children are trusted to walk unattended on a country road once as safe as one's parlor. The penalty is death. Why this cruel and unusual fate? Simply the lawless road hog. He is the reason. He gets off with a fine and possibly a few hours in jail—taken as a joke—and goes out for more of this kind of "fun."

We are aware that there are accidents at times which no ordinary human foresight can avert. But the careful driver will avoid them and does avert them generally.

The man who drives his car at high speed down a city street or a country road where his view may be obstructed is guilty of a crime which should be promptly punished.

The automobile is a splendid invention. It is used sanely and carefully by hundreds of thousands of people. But some, fortunately a small percentage of the whole, seem to think that they are above the law—that they may cover the country road at from thirty to sixty miles an hour or speed through the city street without fear of punishment. Unfortunately they are usually able to have their own way until some child is killed or maimed or until they meet with accident to themselves.

Editor Gazette:

Alexandrians who attended the Middle States Regatta, on the Potomac river at Washington, Monday, were well repaid for the time spent.

In the Junior quadruple sculls race the Old Dominion Boat Club of this city, won second place and aquatic honors, and only lost first place by three seconds to the Malta Boat club, of Philadelphia.

The home oarsmen rowed as pretty a race as was ever seen on the course and their clocklike stroke was admired by all who witnessed the race. Roland Gaines, bow; John Curtin, 2; Francis L. Summers, 3; and James Roberts, stroke, are to be congratulated for their great race, and they are sure to win more honors for the Old Dominion club in the near future.

It is a pleasure to the citizens of our city to note the progress made by the Old Dominion club during the present season and the parents of young men should encourage them to join this rowing association, as it makes them strong and healthful, and at a nominal cost for membership.

BUSINESS MAN.

YOUR TOWN.

If you want to live in the kind of a town
Like the kind of a town you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you left behind,
For there's nothing that's really new;
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town—
It isn't the town, it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid
Lest somebody gets ahead;
When everyone works and nobody shirks
You can raise a town from the dead.
And if, while you make your personal stake,
Your neighbors can make one, too;
Your town will be what you want to see—
It isn't the town, it's you.

William Houchen, 52 years old, was found dead Tuesday in the stable on the farm of Capt. Charles J. Brock near Lacey Springs, in the vicinity of Harrisonburg, Bruises and cuts on the body indicated that he had been trampled to death by the horses. It is supposed that he was stricken with apoplexy and fell under the horses' feet. He was a native of Rockingham county.

"I'LL PRAISE DRECO THE LONGEST DAY I LIVE," SAYS LADY.

Relieved of Constipation, Headaches, Nervousness, Gastritis, Adds Her Words of Praise For Dreco.

"Since taking Dreco I simply feel fine", said Miss J. Ranke, of 2630 Wilkens, Ave., Baltimore.

"I suffered with stomach trouble in its worst form for years", continued Miss Ranke. "I was unable to eat any solid food at all on account of the weak condition of my stomach. Even the lightest of things disagreed with me and after eating I would feel like a big lump had lodged in my chest and nothing I could do would remove it. I would have awful attacks of acute indigestion and it seemed like I could not live through one of these spells. Gas would gather about my heart and I would have smothering spells and could hardly breathe. Then my nerves would give way, my muscles would draw up and I would have a general collapse. I was so nervous I couldn't bear the least unusual noise and couldn't get any rest or sound sleep at all. I was so weak from loss of flesh and strength the least exertion would almost completely exhaust me and when I wasn't down in bed I was too weak to properly see after my household duties. I had tried so long and used so many different medicines without getting any real benefit, I had about despaired of getting anything that would help me.

"It certainly was a lucky day for me when I bought Dreco. I began feeling better right from the start and since taking three bottles of the medicine I haven't a symptom of my troubles. I can eat most anything I want now and all I eat agrees with me. Those awful attacks of acute indigestion have stopped and I have no more smothering spells or shortness of breath. I'm not nervous now and I can stand any kind of noise and my sleep and rest at night is fine. Yes, sir, I have gained in weight and what I have gained in health and strength can't be measured. I'm never troubled with constipation now. This is truly, a wonderful medicine."

Dreco is sold exclusively in Alexandria by Allen's Drug Store.

Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, had stated that $750,000 was spent in one Pennsylvania election. Senator Penrose, in answer, said that Mr. Palmer's statement had never been supported by evidence, and declared he could give better proof that several hundred thousand dollars had been spent in Oklahoma in the recent primary campaign which resulted in the renomination of Senator Owen. Senator Pomerene said Myron T. Herrick and the Myron T. Herrick Voters' League in Ohio spent more than $51,000 in the recent primaries which chose Mr. Herrick as the Republican Senatorial candidate.

Senator Curtis asserted it was well known the Democrats were in favor of the bill because Secretary McAdoo and other Cabinet members already have raised all the money the Democrats need in this campaign. He said $200,000 already had been sent into one state by the Democrats.

Two amendments to the bill were proposed. One by Senator Brady, to postpone the effective date of the act until January 1, 1917, two months after election, was approved. The other, offered by Senator Jones, to make it a felony, for any manufacturer of intoxicating liquors to contribute to a campaign fund was not acted upon.
